

PLACE THE PLACE

You see them as a backdrop in motion pictures, in advertisements, bulletins, newspapers and on television. They were built by men of vision and are remembered for their historical significance or their symbolic meaning.

They rise high toward the heavens, spread over wide vistas or huddle within one square block or less.

You've seen them before, but did you really notice what they were? Here is your opportunity to remember again the landmarks of America as you try to place the place, answers on your right.

Lee Bailey Takes to the Tube

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — He has the shrewd, no-nonsense, cold-blooded manner of the perfect criminal lawyer. Whether he has the warmth and charm of Edward R. Murrow, the public will decide.

He is F. Lee Bailey, the country's most celebrated defense attorney (among his clients: Dr. Sam Sheppard and Carl Coppolino and the alleged Boston Strangler), who will become a television star on Thursday, Sept. 7, when his program, Good Company, premieres on ABC-TV.

Bailey must be compared to the late Murrow because his program bears a great similarity to Murrow's popular Person-to-Person. Both programs were created by John Aaron. The major difference: Murrow conducted his interviews from a studio. Bailey will visit the homes of his guests.

You wonder why an eminently successful, 34-year-old lawyer who has a full legal calendar takes on the added burden of a weekly television series. So you ask. His mouth wags slightly into the Bailey version of a smile.

"I probably took the show because too many people agreed with my initial reaction that it was a crazy idea. When my friends agreed, my reaction was, 'What do you mean, I can't do it?'"

Bailey adds, "I find people get the time to do what they want to do. Will I give up law? No, not in the future that I can see."

Good Company (which began life as RSPV, then became VIP, then Inside Out) was one of three television series offered the flamboyant lawyer.

"One concerned the actual mechanics of a trial as opposed to the Hollywood idea. The other concerned famous trials in history—for instance, the trial of Mary Surratt for complicity in the Lincoln assassination—in which

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
LEEOLANE, Ireland (AP) — Working with English actors, observed Fred Zinnemann while directing "A Man for All Seasons," was like conducting a symphony orchestra after leading a dance band.

John Huston is inclined to agree. He has been directing an all-English cast in this lushly green land of western Ireland, which is doubling as 1820 Scotland for "Sinful Davey," a saga of a legendary highwayman.

"American acting has been based on personality, while the English actors have virtuosity," says Huston.

Such virtuosity has been demonstrated in the Academy Awards, which have been dominated by English actors in recent years. How do they get that way? A prime example can be offered by Huston's present star, John Hurt.

Huston is accustomed to directing names like Humphrey Bogart, Gregory Peck, Richard Burton, Marlon Brando and John Huston. But to play adventurous David Haggart he needed a British actor who could appear to be 20. Huston spotted a photograph of Hurt, who had played the traitor Rich in "A Man for All Seasons."

"If the kid can act, that's our Davey," said the director.

He soon found out John Hurt can act. The young actor was prepared for the opportunity because he had been afforded the kind of acting experience that seems to exist in no other country except England. Nowhere else can an actor receive top-notch training in modern plays and the classics, then be able to practice his profession in the best of theater, films and television.

John Hurt's acting experience in school was limited to a female role in an Oscar Wilde play. But he was convinced he wanted to act. His father, a Church of England minister, was not at all enthusiastic, and John was persuaded to study art instead.

"But at 20 I still wanted to try acting, and I tried to enroll in the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art," he says. "They weren't holding auditions at the time, so I went off to work in the Lincoln Repertory, playing all the parts that the other actors didn't want."

Hurt returned to the Royal Academy and performed what he thought was a miserable audition. But his listeners perceived enough promise to grant him admission to the school, which has produced such recent graduates as Peter O'Toole, Albert Finney, Sarah Miles, Tom Courney and David Warner.

A plain-looking fellow of medium height, John Hurt may well find himself an international star as the result of "Sinful Davey." At 27, the prospect neither delights nor appalls him. "I think I'll be able to handle whatever happens," he says confidently.

HE'S IN FOR A SURPRISE

Dear Helen: I am a girl of 15. I'm writing to a boy of 19 who is in Vietnam. I think he's the most, but he thinks I'm just a little kid because I was when he left for the Army. He kind of pats my head in his letters. Should I give up and stop writing?—GROWING UP

Dear G.U.: Heavens no! Keep writing—and won't he ever be surprised when he comes home next year!—H

Dear Helen: Last Friday I went out with a very nice, respectful boy. The show was over at 1:30 a.m. Then we got some room was over 90 degrees when thing to eat, and were home by the middle-aged Negro man 2:30. But we ended up TALKING came in to report a theft.

A young Negro policeman listened to the older man, asked a few tactful but incisive questions, then dispatched a patrolman to the man's residence.

Two Negro youths came into the room, seating themselves in the warm breeze stirred up by an old fan, and asked about a bus the next day to a swimming pool.

It was the same all day as Negro residents streamed into the room. And as the day wore on, the crisp white shirt of Patrolman James Greene, 32, began to wilt, and perspiration glistened on his forehead. It was, after all, a radical change from the rural tranquility of his last job, which was teaching in the Pittsylvania County, Virginia school system.

It would not be an exaggeration to say that Greene was the only buffer between official Baltimore and the same Negro community which threatened only weeks earlier to erupt into violence.

In the same area earlier in the summer, Negroes milled about in nightly demonstrations protesting the segregated practices of some taverns.

Greene was chosen to man a one-man Police Community Relations Center. The many tasks he would have including watching for trouble, hearing complaints, doing something about those complaints he could handle, and helping to establish a dialogue between the police department and the Negro.

Greene, a graduate of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College in Greensboro, N.C., has handled his new job with the savoir-faire of a career diplomat and psychologist rolled into one.

He said merely hearing the complaints of the residents often was enough. Any danger of rioting or violence, he said, had dissipated as residents of the community came to know that they no longer would be frustrated in an effort to make their resentments and complaints known.

to stop me very hard. Now at 18 I'm a has-been with nothing to do. In my search for kicks I smoked pot, tried LSD and got the wildest reputation in town. Along the road I found lots of help, but few friends. Those people I considered enemies—the "Stupid" people over 30—were the only ones who stuck by me when the others tossed me out. These rebellious teens aren't going to make anyone regret anything. But they'll be filled with regrets when they finally look back and see the mess they've made of their lives. —LIVING IN A COURT OF SILENT DREAMS

One Man Police Relations Center Works

By JACK KNEECE

BALTIMORE (MD. AP) — It was hot and steamy and the temperature inside the small room was over 90 degrees when the middle-aged Negro man came in to report a theft.

A young Negro policeman listened to the older man, asked a few tactful but incisive questions, then dispatched a patrolman to the man's residence.

Two Negro youths came into the room, seating themselves in the warm breeze stirred up by an old fan, and asked about a bus the next day to a swimming pool.

Cleanup Plan Being Tried in Harlem

By JOHN VINOCUR

NEW YORK (AP)—Two blocks from where teen-agers recently chalked "Puerto Rican border, don't cross, flatfoot," fake roses are blooming in windowboxes and kids are putting the broom to Spanish Harlem.

Across town, behind the tenements that crowd toward the Hudson River, more teen-agers are tying bandanas around their mouths and digging into court-yards filled with what they call "air mail express" garbage—the kind thrown from Harlem apartment windows.

Both projects are meant to touch many bases: cleaning up slums, getting kids work, and bringing pride to apathetic neighborhoods. Far from every one is sure they will succeed.

Adrian Rodriguez, a small man in a bow tie and green beret, came out of his butcher shop called La Novillera Carnecería, and watched a boy putting a windowbox on a second floor ledge. It was almost around the corner that policemen fired volleys of shots and a man was killed in Puerto Rican rioting two weeks ago.

"The flowers are a very nice idea," he said, "but flowers are for the outside of the building and it is the inside of the building which is bad. The people are scared to say anything. If they speak, the landlord raises the rent."

Skepticism even affected an 8-year-old watching the Harlem cleanup. "People are too lazy to bring the garbage down from the top floor. They just throw it out the window," said Andre Pleasant.

But the kids worked hard. They swept streets with big Sanitation Department brooms, shoveled out alleys that looked like narrow-gauge garbage dumps, and piled bed stands, beer cans and soggy cartons onto trucks.

A Sanitation Department representative explained that when the youths went into the court-yards they were penetrating territory technically out of his man's jurisdiction.

The landlords are responsible for the areas, but because the average fine for failure to remove the refuse is $2 and some 40 per cent of the summonses issued are ignored, he said, the yards tend to stay filthy.

Hugh Marius, a deputy sanitation commissioner, looked in at both the East and West Harlem projects. "Some kids cleaned up a lot a week or so back," he said. "It stayed clean. They watched it and they told people not to dump garbage there. They said, 'Look, it was my sweat that cleaned it, so let it alone.' People have got to learn."

Lashes Dramatize Eyes

Many beauty-fashion minded women have already discovered that artificial eyelashes do more to accent, enhance and emphasize the beauty of their eyes than any other single type of make-up. These impart every conceivable eye look possible, from filling in sparse or short lashes to dramatizing the eyes in exciting new ways.

Must Have Been What He Meant

WASHINGTON (AP)—A tourist stopped a newsman in the U.S. Capitol Thursday and asked:

"Which way to the gallows?"

"The gallows?" he asked.

"Yes, the gallows," the young lady said. "I want to see the senators."

"You mean the galleries? Straight down this hall."

"Oh, yes—that must be what he meant," the young lady said.

Television and Radio

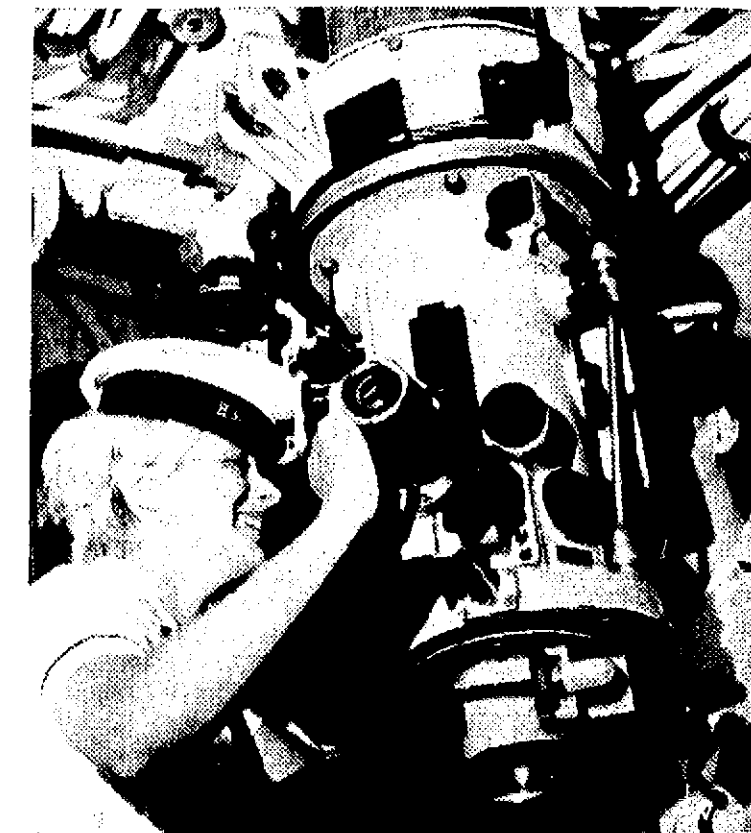

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Networks compete year-round for sponsors, for credit. While the three-cornered war sometimes seems dormant except for occasional publicity handouts, fighting tends to flare up around the opening of the new season.

Until Wednesday, things had been suspiciously quiet on the warring fronts of ABC, CBS and NBC. ABC and CBS long ago had announced plans to have their season premieres during the seven days starting Sept. 5, the day after Labor Day. NBC seemed content with a late start — Sunday, Sept. 10, enough in itself to put the competition on the alert.

Although the industry believes the television audience spends a new season's first three weeks sampling the new wares of all networks and normally pays little attention to Nielsen ratings until sometime in October, it also believes there are certain advantages in capturing the public's attention at the season's opening.

NBC fractured the unusual pre-season calm by announcing Wednesday that during the first five days of the new season—ABC and CBS premiere period—they would "sneak preview" eight pilot films for programs contemplated for past or future seasons.

The "sneak previews" coincide, in most cases, with premiere shows of new ABC series. When ABC's new "Garrison's Guerrillas" starts its action on Tuesday, Sept. 5, NBC will be sending out a comedy, "L'il Ab-

Life In Arkansas

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer

Know who the most popular guy with the kids in Conway is this summer? He's a fellow by the name of Ray C. Patton, and he's from nearby Clinton, at that.

How did an outsider gain such popularity? It's simple. He leased a Jeep from a minister in Springdale, equipped it with a bell and a canopy and hooked on a freezer loaded with ice cream.

Now you've guessed it. He's Conway's "ice cream man" this summer and he not only has it made with the kids, but also he's got a corner on the market.

Patton is a sophomore at the University of Arkansas and is using the money to help pay his way through college. His popularity was proved during a recent visit to Little Rock.

"I was visiting a friend and we went to one of his relative's house," Patton told the Conway Log Cabin Democrat. "We pulled up and a little girl came charging out, jumped up and hugged me, saying, 'Oh, Mr. ice cream man.'"

As is the case with most jobs, though, Patton says there are some headaches, too.

"One thing is when a kid goes into his house for money," he said. "I sit there and his mama doesn't let him come back out." He didn't say whether he could hear the crying inside or not.

Since being on the job for more than two months, Patton says he has learned a few tricks of the trade.

For instance, he said, "If a kid is waiting for me on the curb, you can bet he has the money, but if he is standing half way between the street and the house, he doesn't."

Even though his popularity is at its pinnacle among the kids, Patton insists his best customer is a dog named Beauregard.

He runs out each time he hears the bell, Patton said, and the kids buy Beauregard a banana poppers each day.

It seems that motorists during rush hour traffic in North Little Rock were startled one day recently to see a light blue car all decorated with streamers and pulling several cans on a string.

The sides of the car were decorated with tasty and exuberant graffiti, one West Memphis Times reported.

It was a typical after-the-wedding scene, except the crowd noticed there was only a man in the car.

As the car passed with the horn blaring, the crowd saw why.

Painted on the back was the inscription: "Just Divorced."

ner," a comic strip-based pilot film that failed to make the current schedule, and "Sheriff Who," a Western spoof dropped last season when two similar ventures died on network vines.

On Friday night, Sept. 8, when ABC will introduce a whole evening of new programs, NBC will come along with a full line-up of one-shot broadcasts including "The Hardy Boys," "The Ghost-breakers"—both passed over for this season—"Police Story" and "Three for Danger."

Two other old pilots, "Week-end," and "Campo 44," a candidate for a network spot two seasons back, will be shown Saturday night, Sept. 9, running into Jackie Gleason's season premiere on CBS.

The big new Sunday night news show of the educational stations and some of the more important special programs of the networks are being withheld until the end of October—when Daylight Saving Time ends and more people are likely to be watching television at night.

BE PARTNERS WITH GOD SUPPORT HIS CHURCH

GRACE at MEAT

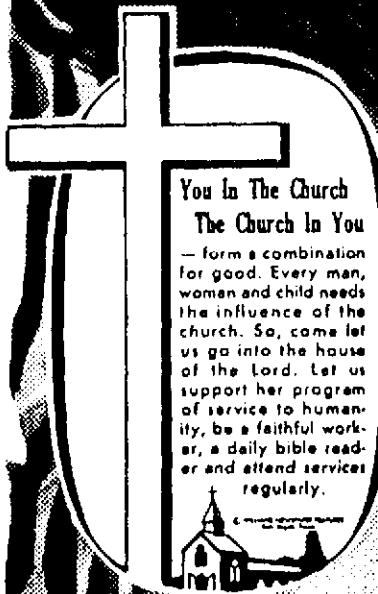

Bobby Burns calls us to thank God for food which He provides. The Jewish people use a beautiful grace, "We praise Thee, O God, who in kindness sustainest the world ... Amen." They could well add their other prayer, "May our table be an altar of loving kindness, and our home a temple in which Thy spirit of goodness dwells." Many families use a poem, but more often this simple grace, — "Bless, O Lord, this food to our use, and us in Thy service; through Jesus Christ our Lord ... Amen."

Every family would be blessed if they would say:

"Back of the loaf is the snowy flour, And back of the flour the mill, And back of the mill is the wheat and the shower, And the Sun and Thy Father's will."

But better than all learned prayers is our own, simply spoken directly to God.

Do you say Grace at Meat?

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Ministers of all faiths and the community-minded firms below persuade you to read this Spiritual Values page and make it a part of your life ... it is your heritage.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Removal of "Dead" Teeth Is Your Dentist's Decision
By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I have three "dead" teeth in my mouth, two upper front ones and one molar. My oculist says I should have them removed because they can cause general disease. He says my eye trouble comes from these "dead" teeth and that they can affect my heart and other vital organs. Is this so? They don't bother me and I don't want them extracted. I have them X-rayed once a year as a precaution.
A — If your "eye trouble" is iritis it's not hard to see why your oculist is so frustrated.
Even though much is known about this disease it's stubborn and recurrent, and its specific cause and cure have so far defied medical science.
But the a priori decision to extract "dead" teeth when ever diagnosis is undetermined is a medical philosophy that was abandoned many years ago. It's not the least bit valid in the practice of modern medicine.

Physicians and dentists still feel that teeth can be suspect as foci of infection, but they're really looking for abscesses or periodontal infection of any and all teeth, not specially the treated, nonvital teeth.
Dentists prefer to say non-vital instead of dead teeth.
Their proper treatment is called root canal therapy and consists of removing the nerve, draining abscess, sterilizing root canal and filling it with gutta percha or silver point or both.
Teeth so treated can be as useful as vital teeth and last just as long. I have two such teeth in my mouth, two lower six year molars, that were treated when I was 12 years old. I still bless the dentist who used good judgment to treat instead of extract them.

Except for a check-up X ray a few months after R.C.T., it's not necessary to X-ray nonvital teeth any more often than vital ones. This is an individual judgment which your dentist should make.

SEALs Hit the Cong

An elite Navy group, the SEALs, is hitting the enemy in Vietnam on his own grounds, by the means shown above. Totalling about 200 officers and men, the five-year-old organization is shown here in training in the States.

SEALs are so-named because of their ability to strike by land, from under the sea or by parachuting into enemy territory as shown in the three top photographs. Mission of the triple-threat group is to harass the enemy, destroy him and his supply lines and generally reduce his ability and will to fight.

Is Retzlaff's Voice Haunted by Past?

NEW YORK — For 11 years, Pete Retzlaff survived the organized mayhem of the National Football League.

Then, after the 1966 season, his arms, legs and head still intact, he decided to retire to the better life.

In professional football, the "better life" is synonymous with broadcasting and telecasting.

Frank Gifford, Kyle Rote, Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier, among others, parlayed big names and big smiles into broadcasting careers.

Pete Retzlaff figured he'd do the same. In addition to his good looks, deep voice and all-league credentials, the Philadelphia Eagles and actually had broadcasting experience (he had been an announcer for a Philadelphia station).

Pete tried to get a job with the St. Louis Cardinals and New Orleans Saints, but someone had decided he was not the man for the position.

That someone, Pete Retzlaff maintains, was Pete Rozelle. The NFL office denies it.

Retzlaff said his troubles started when he was head of the NFL players' association.

"Yes," Pete said, I thought some of the things I said might come back to me some day."

Retzlaff works for WCAU-TV, a CBS affiliate in Philadelphia. CBS telecasts NFL games.

"My name was not submitted for a job," Pete said. "There's no use submitting it when you know it won't be approved."

The right to approve or disapprove telecasters belongs to commissioner Pete Rozelle, according to an NFL spokesman.

"Rozelle and I had differences of opinion when I was connected with the players' association," Retzlaff said. "But I thought it was just that—a difference of opinion."

"I got a little tired of being told what you can or can't do. It's a mistake when they try to control your thought process."

"You know they have what amounts to a 'gag clause' in the NFL constitution. If you violate it and criticize them, you can be fined, suspended or both."

"Once, one of the owners tried to get me suspended when I was trying to strengthen the players' association."

Retzlaff and Rozelle also disagreed over the merger of the NFL with the American League. Retzlaff called it a "disgrace" and added that its purpose was "to further line the owners' pockets with all the money that has made pro football so lucrative."

That is Pete Retzlaff's way. "My road," he says, "never has been very smooth and straight."

The NFL office maintains that Pete has not been blacklisted.

However, Pete Elliott, the former University of Illinois coach who was forced to resign in the slush fund affair, obtained a job as a "color" man for the Minnesota Vikings next fall.

"Don't hold what happened at Illinois against Elliott," Retzlaff said. "He was a victim of circumstance."

Was Pete Retzlaff?

Tom Meschery Remembers Hiroshima

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Tom Meschery does not have to search his memory for recollections of the day the atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima.

He was only seven, but age does not matter when the mind is alert, intelligent and conditioned.

At age seven, Tom Meschery's mind had been conditioned to the horrors of war.

Today, Tom is 29. He is a professional basketball player. Next season, after seven years with the Philadelphia and San Francisco Warriors, Tom will play for Seattle, one of the new National Basketball Association expansion teams.

Tom did not see the United States until he was eight because he and his mother and his sister spent World War II interned in Japanese prison camps.

The background of the Mescherys' internment can be traced to the days of the Russian revolution when Tom's grandparents were forced to flee Russia for Siberia. Tom's grandfather had been a prominent member of the Duma (similar to the United States House of Representatives).

"My grandmother's maiden name was Tolstoy," Tom said. "Her side of the family was related directly to Alexei Tolstoy, the brother of Count Tolstoy, the founder of the princely Tolstoy family and great grandfather of Leo Tolstoy. Alexei Tolstoy was a famous Russian poet in his own right."

From Siberia, Tom's family fled to China where they settled in Harbin. Tom was born there in 1938.

Before the outbreak of the war, Tom's father left for the United States (San Francisco) to establish a home for the family. "We were to follow a year later," Tom said. "Unfortunately, the war began as we prepared to start our journey to the United States."

The Japanese then took the Mescherys, and many others, from Harbin to Yokohama and then to Tokyo, where they were imprisoned for five years.

"My recollection of those times, despite my age," Tom said, "remains with me vividly. I fear that I shall never forget the torment of those years."

"It was only toward the end of the war that I can really say I began to comprehend my life in a prison camp. The war was going badly for the Japanese. We were able to detect the news from our camp attendants. Then one day we were told to prepare ourselves for bombing raids. Black curtains were put over the windows of the large dormitories we lived in."

"The beginning of the raids to the end of the war was a nightmare, so much more for the grownups than for my sister and I who lived through them as an adventure. Every night, the planes would fly over the city of Tokyo. Every night we were rushed frightened but orderly to our shelters to sit out the raid in the cold and wet darkness of the basement of our building."

"Only children's eyes," Tom continued, "can truly perceive the horrors of war. Only very young minds react with instant tears to the terror of an unknown destruction. My memories of the bombing are ones of color—red and orange explosions and brilliantly white flares and blackness."

"As the end of the war drew near, the raids occurred daily and then even in daylight. Finally, even though we had painted a red cross on our roof, our building burst into flames."

"The most vivid of my recollections was the long march through the burned-out city of Tokyo. It is a memory which I still dream of. There was no place to go, no one who would have us. We were prisoners of war among prisoners of war."

"Everywhere, bulldozers pushed rubble to the side, trying to clear the streets. Dead bodies were raked unnoticed to be buried among the debris of once beautiful buildings. And though the destruction of a once majestic city did not cross my mind, the smell of death invaded my nostrils. I will carry that smell with me until I die."

Finally, the Mescherys and the other prisoners were allowed to stay in a Catholic hospital run by Japanese nuns.

"One day I remember that I was with everyone and we

NEW YORK, N.Y.—(NEA)

—Andre Rakowitsch sits quietly through luncheon in Manhattan, slouched casually with the air of a man quite accustomed to the fine things in life. But there is a restlessness evident in the smiling eyes. He is not bored, merely impatient.

"Tomorrow I go back to the jungle," he says softly. He waves a hand toward the south, and you see the deep scar on the finger.

"Piranha," he says, noticing the look. "But they're not all were all looking in the direction of the south," Tom said. "Everyone was excited. I was excited as well, but not for the same reason. My mother was looking in the direction of Hiroshima. There, a new age had started."

"War to children is a horror of moments," Tom added. "It is only when war destroys a child's parents that it becomes a constant terror. I was fortunate never to lose the closeness of my mother during those years."

"I can look back now more intelligently and without hate. Though I wonder if my mother had been killed who I would have hated—the Americans or the Japanese. It's an interesting question that I will never be able to answer."

Pro Charts —BY MURRAY OLDERMAN—

AFL: —Buffalo Bills

Joel Collier

Tom Sestak

GENERAL COMMENT—Bills are perennial "have" of AFL's eastern division. And on paper coach Joel Collier has more than ever with the acquisition of three big stars—Powell, Lincoln, Flores. No one sees how they can lose.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Jack Kemp, the Elbow, can't afford to rest on his senior citizenship. Ex-Raider Tom Flores is more accurate passer (records prove it, too) and has almost as much experience. Rating—B+

RECEIVING—If Art Powell still has all his finesse, and no reason he shouldn't have, the long bomb becomes a double threat, since Elbert Dubenion is still around. If Duby slows up, there's Bobby Crockett, last year's bright neophyte. And Paul Costa looms big at tight end. Rating—A

RUSHING—Like the Powell bit—if Keith Lincoln's everything he used to be (and he's only 28) they'll bruise a few people. Keith's biggest problem might be cracking starting combine of Bobby Burnett (rookie of year) and Wray Carlton, an underrated fullback. Rating—B+

LINE—The knee injury to Capt. Billy Shaw forced some juggling, with tackle Stew Barber moving to guard and rookie Gary Bugenhagen taking Barber's old spot. Shaw should be back in mid-season. His kind of class is vital. Absence changes whole complexion of Bills' blocking. Rating—B—

KICKING—Booth Lustig, Mike Mercer vie for place-kicking. Neither is a Lou Groza. Punting is competent as always with Paul Maguire. Rating—B

DEFENSE

LINE—The big gamble was trading away end Tom Day in Lincoln deal. The big hope is Remi Prudhomme will fill the gap. Best tackle set in AFL with Tom Sestak, Jim Dunaway at top of their games. Ron McDole set again at flank. But behind them everybody's untested. Rating—B

LINEBACKERS—Mike Stratton, Harry Jacobs, John Tracey set record for longevity as unit every time they step on field. But time is catching up with latter two, and someone like Marty Schottenheimer's ready to take over. Among rookies, Notre Dame's Tom Rhoads shows promise, too. Rating—B+

SECONDARY—The solid fellows are Butch Byrd at one corner and George Soimes at free safety. Pending development of Charley King or couple of rookies, the faces at other posts will be some: Tommy Janik at corner, Hagood Clarke at strong safety. Old hand Booker Edgerson pushes Janik. Rating—B

SUMMARY: This is a solid club that has helped itself with off-season trades but didn't pick up much rookie class and may have left itself vulnerable on defensive line. If everything goes normal—meaning injuries don't decimate them—Bills should be heavily favored to dominate the East again. PREDICTION—List in East

CHICAGO—(NEA)—Jerry Kramer remembers what it was like to have Jimmy Taylor playing fullback for the Green Bay Packers.

"You'd be logging along," says Jerry, "not getting much of any place. Then you'd see Jimmy knock over an end, bust through a linebacker, drag along a halfback and wind up down the field gaining 12 yards. You'd pick yourself up and say, if that old blankety-blank can go like that, so can you. He'd give you a tremendous lift."

And Jerry, who played offensive guard to Jimmy's fullback, also remembers what it was like to have Paul Hornung playing halfback for the Green Bay Packers:

"Psychologically, he'd give you life whether he was in the game, on the bench or in the locker room. Paul had a tremendous knowledge of football. He understood what was going on. I wasn't as close to him as I was to Jimmy, but he wasn't only a halfback. Paul was our leader."

Now Taylor plays fullback for the New Orleans Saints. Hornung was supposed to join him but retired because of a back injury.

The Packers, still respected as the most powerful team in professional football, will start the 1967 season depending heavily on two second-year men, Donnie Anderson and Jim Grabowski, to team with holdover Elijah Pitts in a revamped backfield.

"We'll miss Paul and Jimmy," admits Forrest Gregg, who plays right tackle at the shoulder of Kramer. "They were our friends as well as teammates. But physically, I know these new kids can do the job. In fact, they make it easier for me because they hit a hole so fast that I don't have to hold a block as long."

A symptom of the new approach outlined by Gregg was revealed in the fourth quarter of the Packers' rout of the College All-Stars, when Grabowski bolted through the line and past the Stars' secondary for a 22-yard touchdown burst that made everybody on the field look like a spectator.

Anderson, the highest-priced rookie of all time in 1966, showed definite signs he'll deliver the first dividend on the Packers' $700,000 investment with fancy ground-churning around the flanks.

Even coach Vince Lombardi is excited by Anderson's breakout prospects. In personality, projection and performance, Donnie comes closest to replacing the magic spark that Hornung provided for the Packers. But it's important to remember that he's only a second-year pro.

"I played with Paul and Jimmy for nine years, notes Kramer. "They added a great deal of spice and enjoyment to professional football for me. Why, Paul was my hero."

"Donnie is like a pledge. He buys us cigarettes and cokes." Anderson is no dummy. He's the new kid joining the gang on the block, and the guys up front, like Kramer and Gregg, can make it a lot easier for him, so why not play up to them?

Especially since Jerry has to hustle more than ever, at the age of 31, to keep up with the changing look on the Packers. His job, as a guard, is a little different than Gregg's at tackle. On the Packers, the guards pull on almost every play. With a speedster like Anderson threatening to run up his back, Jerry has trimmed his weight, cut down on the padding he carries and jacked up his acceleration.

The intangible element that Anderson and Grabowski can't provide is leadership. "Whether they give us the inspiration value Paul and Jimmy did is a question," admits Kramer. "But one of the great things about the Green Bay Packers is that we've got the pride of winning, and fellows like Max McGee or Fuzzy Thurston can step in as leaders. Of course, coach Lombardi is no slouch in that department, either. Winning habits somehow have a way of generating their own inspiration."

FULLBACK JIM TAYLOR has rejoined his former Green Bay teammate, Paul Hornung, in the backfield of the New Orleans Saints. Taylor played out his option with the Packers and signed with the Saints. He's a former LSU star.

DeGaulle Is Still Walking a Tightrope

WASHINGTON (AP) — For almost a decade French President Charles de Gaulle has been walking a fragile tightrope although with his self-confidence it probably seemed as sturdy as a concrete highway.

It's getting frayed as he gets older. He is 76. Yet his presidency has another six years to go. He has done historic service for France but already is talked of as a man who belonged in another century.

The French commentator, Robert Aron, said De Gaulle has a "Napoleonic or Sun King concept and shows even when he claims to be an innovator he is often a reactionary."

Former President Harry S. Truman had the same idea four years ago saying De Gaulle sounds "more like the same old Napoleon brandy with a strong dash of Machiavellian cynicism. He is in any event over a century too late."

De Gaulle can be crude and gracious but he never matched the clumsiness he showed last month when he visited Canada as its honored guest for its centennial.

Carried away by his French nationalism while addressing a crowd of French Canadians, less than 10 per cent of whom are agitating for separation from Canada, De Gaulle shouted in their support: "Free Quebec."

The shock waves from this bit of gall by De Gaulle, who contributed to discontent if not revolt in a country where he was a guest, was felt around the world, including France.

The Canadian government showed remarkable restraint by saying the least it could say. It called his remarks "unacceptable." He went home in a huff. Some of his critics called him "senile."

At home he was under criticism not only for the Quebec caper but for his domestic and foreign policies. As the years go by his popularity goes down. The Gaullists have practically no edge in Parliament.

Step by step, as he grows older, he removes himself further from his wartime allies, the United States and Britain, while antagonizing them.

Little River Co. Bank Hearing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Bank Department will hold a public hearing Sept. 1 on a bank charter requested by a group of Little River County residents for the proposed Little River Bank and Trust Co.

In England They Grouse About Grouse

LONDON (AP) — Today's the day to grouse about grouse.

The lagopus scoticus, or grouse, is a small, swift-flying bird, the annual shooting of which on the Scottish and Yorkshire moors becomes legal every Aug. 12.

From today onward until the closing of the season in January, grouse-hating foreigners in Britain cringe as do the shot-at birds, but for a different reason.

To the average American, even a well-cooked grouse is hardly a goodie. Served as the British serve them, grouse can be downright repulsive.

The 18-carat grouse-lover serves the bird practically raw. As the season lengthens, the grouse are served raw and in a state approaching rotteness.

"High" is the gourmet's word for almost rotten, and from today until after Christmas, foreign guests—any guests—are going to get them that way.

So favored is the grouse as a food that the natives call Aug. 12 "the glorious 12th."

Quivering with culinary anticipation, scores of Londoners awaited the arrival of the first dead grouse from the highlands.

One posh hotel—the Savoy—issued a rapturous bulletin describing grouse as "that height of a gourmet's delight," adding that eight or nine brace of "the first birds to fall" would be flown to London.

The hotel said they would be on Sunday's menu.

Ugh! But uglier still about a month from now, when they're high.

The grouse is the snob's bird, so two of them are not two grouse, or a pair of grouse—but brace of grouse. And that's the way they're put before you. You have to eat two, not one.

Congress Is Edgy Over Own Safety

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some members of Congress are getting edgy about their own safety during deliberations wide open to the public.

In the Senate, its 100 members sit and stroll about in a pit 113 by 80 feet, within easy lobbing distance of the 611 gallery seats above and surrounding them.

In the House of Representatives, at the other end of the Capitol, up to 435 legislators at a time sit and mill about in another pit, 139 by 92 feet, wide open to the 624 gallery seats above and about them.

No protective barriers intervene in either chamber. Cameras are checked outside. But although a handful of plainclothes detectives sit casually among the visitors, ladies clasp handbags in their laps; gentlemen reach, unmolested, into their pockets.

"When will it be?" Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., asked his House colleagues this week. "A year from now? Next week? Later this afternoon?"

"Does anyone doubt that it is only a matter of time before the odds catch up with this chamber and violence visits us again?" he asked.

The event that agitated Jacobs was the intrusion into the House gallery Monday of 75 to 100 Harlem demonstrators demanding rat control legislation. Some battled fiercely with Capitol police—one of whom remains hospitalized—before being ejected. The House had adjourned minutes earlier.

One demonstrator promised the group would return next week—with rats.

Jacobs and Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., among others, want some protection.

"The galleries," Hechler said, "should be enclosed with soundproof, transparent covering, with the floor debates piped into the galleries."

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, went Hechler one better. "There ought to be a plexiglass shield around the gallery," Gross told a newsman, "and there ought to be a wire mesh dropped from the ceiling so you couldn't throw grenades down into the House."

But there are other members of Congress who take a cooler view—and one, Rep. George H. Fallon, D-Md., speaks with some authority.

Fallon was wounded March 1, 1954, when Puerto Rican fanatics opened fire with pistols from the southwest gallery into a nearly full chamber. Five congressmen were wounded—one seriously. Fallon, who was shot through the hip, is the only one of the five still in Congress.

Arkansan on Committee

HONOLULU (AP) — John C. Deacon of Jonesboro, Ark., who is attending the 90th annual meeting of the American Bar Association, was named Thursday as one of seven members of a new ABA committee on crime control and prevention.

Boy Trapped In Well By Rock Slide

By JAMES PHILLIPS
LENORE, W. Va. (AP) — Falling rock threatened to crush a 15-year-old youth trapped midway down a well today as rescue workers called in heavy ditch-digging equipment to help pull him free.

"Tell them don't stop," pleaded Leonard Boyce from his entrapment 14 feet underground. He was buried in rock from his knees to his chest at 5:15 p.m. Friday.

Boyce, of nearby Parsley's Bottom, a small mountain community near this southwestern West Virginia community, was fed hot chocolate through a rubber tube as the lad shivered through the night.

He was trapped while trying to inspect the well for cleaning. It is in the sloping front yard of a house owned by Willard Howell.

Workers reached Boyce today by digging a trench alongside the well's casing. But more rock began falling on the boy after a small hole was dug through the side of the well for rescuers to reach his head.

Operations then were halted because of fears that the youth would be crushed by stone.

"He's holding up better than most persons would," said Elmer Newsome, a school teacher helping with rescue efforts.

As rescuers gingerly picked up rocks from the trench, Boyce repeated: "I want out. Hurry and get me out."

He remained calm, however. Among the some 150 spectators standing by in the predawn hours were Boyce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyce and his two sisters about 12 and 13. His mother said quietly, "I just hope he can hang on."

Boyce, complaining of pains in his side, pleaded frequently for water. "Please get me a drink of water. Please get me out of here," he repeated.

Fearing even slight vibrations could cause more cave-ins, police ordered all truck traffic halted on a nearby highway and trains were ordered not to run in the area.

Rescue teams included men from area coal mines, who at first hoped that a trench could be dug deep enough to reach Boyce's legs and pull him free feet first. But they found heavy machinery was needed.

Agreement Under Duress Repudiated

HONG KONG (AP) — The Hong Kong government today repudiated an agreement signed by a British district officer threatened with death by a Red Chinese mob which captured a Hong Kong border guard post.

The Communists were expected to try to make propaganda gains with the agreement promising removal of barbed-wire barricades protecting the Hong Kong side of the border and compensation to Red Chinese who claimed damages from their wheelbarrow colliding with the barricades.

No one was injured in the attack on the guard post at Man Kam To village, the only road crossing on the border between Red China and the British colony. But it was the most serious border incident since a Red Chinese mob invaded at another point on July 8 and killed five Hong Kong border guards.

Hong Kong officials said Chinese began crossing the border shortly after midnight and the growing mob broke through the barricade.

Some Chinese seized weapons from three British soldiers on guard at the post and called for Trevor Bedford, British district officer for the border area, to meet with them.

You May Not Believe This But Leisure Is Fast Becoming Problem

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Never before in history have we had such a problem. And the way things are going it's apt to get worse.

The above words could be the preliminary to a great many subjects but you may be surprised or even object to the topic they introduce today—Leisure.

An overworked businessman or mother whose children have been "running her ragged" will be quick to say we are mistaken. Maybe in their cases we are, but the fact is more and more people today have idle time, unwanted time, leisure time, call it what you will. And it is predicted that by the year 200 we shall be working a 15-hour week, a 3-hour day!

Also, according to "National Business Woman," a publication of the B & PWC Clubs, at the present rate, by 1985 each person working at a job should have accumulated at least a decade of it. Now, that is a real example of "Time On Our Hands," but it can be a sweet time if we play it right.

Some will want to pack the accumulating extra hours, resulting from our own industriousness and the contributions of science, with a more intense pursuit of the dollar. Such people forfeit the reward of this extra time.

As in so many other cases, the Greeks met and solved this problem (it seems strange to call it that) years ago. You see, the Greeks had a passion for leisure and used it to enjoy the fruits of the mind, to enlarge vision and understanding, to cultivate individualism, and to become involved in the excitement of government, public affairs, sculpture, drama, art, and philosophy.

So none of the pursuits just

Purcell Has Intervened in Davis Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell has intervened in the Lynn Davis court suit, filing a petition which charges that Davis is a usurper and is ineligible to hold the office of director of the State Police.

Circuit Judge Warren Wood granted Purcell's petition Thursday. A hearing on the Davis suit will be held at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 21.

The suit was filed by Davis and members of the State Police Commission as individual taxpayers. It only asks that the defendants, Administration Director Julian Hogan, Auditor Jimmie Jones and Treasurer Nancy Hall be ordered to pay Davis' salary.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller appointed Davis to the position despite an opinion from Purcell which said that Davis was ineligible because he did not fulfill a residency requirement, stipulating that the director be an Arkansas resident for 10 years next preceding his appointment.

Purcell's intervention petition said that Davis had not been a resident for 10 years and that he "is ineligible to hold the office of director of the Arkansas Department of State Police and is usurping the office and its duties now and continues to do so contrary to the laws of this state."

mentioned appeals to you? You'd rather fish? O.K. There's nothing wrong with good, clean fun. And, on the subject of sports, maybe you could impart your accumulated knowledge in some field such as baseball or swimming to members of the younger generation and, thereby, benefit all of you.

On the subject of Leisure, Winston Churchill once said, "Many remedies are suggested for the avoidance of worry and mental strain by persons who, over prolonged periods, have to bear exceptional responsibilities and discharge duties on a very large scale. Some advise exercise, and others, repose. Some counsel travel, and others, retreat. Some praise solitude, and others, gaiety. No doubt all of these may play their part according to the individual temperament. But the element which is constant and common in all of them is Change."

Eureka Spgs. Ordered to Hold Vote

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Circuit Judge Maupin Cummings ordered the City of Eureka Springs Thursday to call a referendum election within 60 days on a resolution which established a city housing authority.

The judge's ruling came after a group of city taxpayers filed suit seeking to force the city to hold an election on the resolution, which they hoped to have repealed.

Cummings overruled a plea by City Atty. Oliver Adams that the suit be dismissed on grounds that the resolution passed more than a year ago and that the statute of limitations had run out.

Cummings said the resolution was not in effect until it was published and that the petition was filed within the time limitation.

Records indicate that the resolution was passed by the City Commission in March 1966, but was not made public until May 1967.

The plaintiffs said that the city failed to act on a petition calling for an election presented to City Clerk Albert Harp in June. Harp said that the petition had been filed with him but that it had been lost and was not available. However, the plaintiffs presented another copy.

The city has named a housing authority, headed by Jerry Newton, and has made preliminary plans for construction of 75 public housing units. The city also applied for $1.8 million in federal funds to finance construction.

Bridge Hit First Time Near Hanoi

By GEORGE ESPER
SAIGON (AP) — Four South Vietnamese army compounds were attacked simultaneously by the Viet Cong early today in Quang Tri Province just below the demilitarized zone. Some 100 defenders of one compound took heavy casualties.

Forty-one Viet Cong bodies were counted at two of the compounds. In a daring air strike 1.7 miles from the center of Hanoi Friday, U.S. Air Force jets blasted the Doumer Bridge for the first time and dropped the center span into the Red River. The mile-long bridge carries all rail traffic out of Hanoi bound for Red China.

The heaviest guerrilla assault in Quang Tri fell on the Trieu Phong compound two miles northwest of Quang Tri City. Besides heavy but unspecified South Vietnamese casualties in repulsing the attack, two Australian advisers to the unit were wounded.

South Vietnamese troops took light casualties at the La Vang compound two miles south of Quang Tri City and at the Hai Lang compound five miles southeast of the town. Communist mortars lobbed a number of rounds at the Quang Tri sector compound but failed to score any damaging hits.

The U.S. raids on the Doumer Bridge marked the vosest strikes to the center of North Vietnam's capital since a power plant in Hanoi was raked June 10.

Racial Scene Activity Is Peaceful

A presidential panel's call for greater Negro participation in the National Guard has gotten a mixed response. Republican governors have urged prompt law enforcement to head off potential riots, and 16 Negro leaders, including Black Power advocates, have called for a political alliance with "progressive whites."

This was the major activity on today's racial scene as specific proposals to deal with disorders and their causes began to flow from meetings and hearing rooms in New York, Washington and Chicago.

On a call Thursday by the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorder for more Negroes in the Guard, a panel member, Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., said, "If there was a more realistic percentage of Negroes in Guard units called to handle riots in Negro areas, the Guard units would be more effective in doing so."

But Maj. Gen. James F.K. Cantwell, president of the National Guard Association, said, "How can you beat the bushes when you have a waiting list?"

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was giving the special commission's recommendations immediate attention.

Eight Republican governors who met in New York outlined a 60-point program to deal with social injustice and lawlessness, but stressed the need for quick law enforcement in volatile situations.

The governors' proposals included pooled police and fire-fighting manpower to be made available to cities where trouble has broken out.

In Chicago, 16 Negro leaders including Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, proposed "cooperation between black militants and white progressives."

In a letter sent to several thousand members of Negro organizations, they said, "There are whites who are still committed to the struggle for freedom and justice. We feel that political alliances, without compromising one's political or organizational integrity, are necessary and crucial at this point."

In Mississippi, Negroes were cheering the victories of almost half the Negroes who ran for office in Tuesday's Democratic primary. Negroes won 15 county offices outright, and 19 others gained places in an Aug. 29 runoff election.

Speaking Of Names

Somebody or other, no doubt with the aid of a computer, has been playing around with the names to be found on the rolls of the Social Security Administration. The numerical range goes from 1.5 million Smiths to the one and only Great Scott. Another single was provided by a couple named Cans who dubbed their son Tin.

Further it may be noted that Safety First, Never Gamble, July Bonus, Pork Chop, True Story and Born Young are among other clients of Social Security. There is also a July A. September and probably you do not need to be told his middle name is August. Experienced though we happen to be with the vagaries of nomenclature, we still have trouble believing another enrollee is Stick Around.

Our purpose in mentioning the foregoing names is by no means altogether frivolous. We hope we have suggested to parents who have yet to name offspring that man's inhumanity to man is frequently exemplified by the peculiar names tacked to the lives of unoffending infants. — Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

Tax It: Smokers Aren't People

Speaking of thinking with your pocketbook: A year ago we would have been outraged by the proposal of the House Ways and Means Committee to add another three-cents-per-pack tax on cigarettes. In the interim, however, we quit the weed. True to the ancient maxim that "the good tax is one someone else pays," we see no reason at all not to add three cents or 30 cents or a dollar to a pack of cigarettes. As long as people are intent on smoking themselves to death, why not tax their suicidal intentions?

That's this week's opinion, however. Next week we may be back on the weed and would be deeply troubled by the injustice of adding more taxes to a basic creature comfort — nay, a necessity. — Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

Miniskirts

Personally, we're inclined to regard the miniskirt fad with equanimity, though we do doubt that some of the ladies can see themselves as others see them. In some places, however, the fashion trend can stir strong feelings.

When a Philippine Congressman proposed a ban on miniskirts, for instance, one of his female colleagues threatened to retaliate by outlawing elevator shoes for men. The prime aim of both products, she might have pointed out, is to give boys a bit of a lift. — Wall Street Journal

Gazette Writer Dies at 86

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Harry Lee Williams, 86, a native of Jonesboro who wrote the "Fragments of the Past Years" column for the Arkansas Gazette, died at his home here Thursday.
